

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A process of lateral crystallization comprises providing a silicon film on a substrate surface, exposing a localized substrate region at the substrate surface to a laser heating source, and annealing a portion of 5 the silicon film in thermal contact with the localized substrate region by exposing the silicon film to a low-fluence optical annealing source.